Birks sterling silver tea services are the best that artistic designing and fine craftsmanship can produce when she pours tea in the firelit living room, the wind outside, the crackling blaze and the cheery tea-table all seem in conspiracy to give an added touch of intimacy to the occasion.

How many low-voiced questions have passed over that old tea service? Truly, could it speak, it would have wonderful tales to tell—tales of tenderness and of mirth that it has heard and seen throughout its long life of usefulness and beauty.

Silverware is a gift that lasts, not a lifetime, but centuries.

Final Plans Completed for Big Parade

MEDS' STUNT

Lower Years Must Wear
McGill Sweaters

Everything is ready at last. All final plans have been completed for the "Fete de Nuit" and the monster parade following immediately afterwards, and all that now remains is for the undergraduates to see that the thing goes through with a great big bang. The headline tells you that enthusiasm is needed. So it is, in plenty of that is shown by the student body in general the huge success of the event is already assured. And there is not the slightest doubt, or at least there should not be, but that the men of McGill will be on hand with the right spirit and the right dope. Those are what are going to count most. The committee in charge have done all that is humanly possible under the circumstances and it is up to the students to show real cooperation with them. If they do everything is all right. Otherwise—well perhaps the dismal consequences had better be left to the imagination.

Now attention to the arrangements for the parade. They were given in yesterday's issue, but will bear repeating for the sake of any short-memory individual. First of all, and most important, is the fact that the parade is scheduled to start on time. Science will form up on McTavish street facing south, with Arts and Commerce behind them stretching up McTavish. Law and Dentistry will line up on the campus beside the main drive, facing Sherbrooke St. Medicine will be marshalled on the road which goes past the Engineering, Chemistry and Physics buildings, meeting the main drive near the Sherbrooke St. Gate. When the signal to march is given Science will lead off the procession, followed by Arts and Commerce. At the same moment Law and Dentistry will march out the Sherbrooke St. gate turning west and falling in behind Arts and Commerce at the corner least, will bring up the rear. The order of March is as follows:

Sherbrooke, Mountain, Dorchester, Union Ave. to the campus, where the parade will disband.
Every undergraduate of McGill is urged and expected to take part in the huge student demonstration for the graduates and the general public. Each faculty will be headed by its performers in the "Fete de Nuit" clad in their costumes, many of which will be bizarre to say the least. Each student of the first second and third years not taking part in the performance is requested to beg borrow or steal a McGill sweater to wear in the procession if he is not already possessed of one. This point is a most important one and one which cannot be too strongly impressed on the mind of the undergraduates. The parade is McGill, and the sweaters are needed to give the affair the right touch. The senior year men will be clothed in some distinctive uniform, to be chosen at the discretion of the class.

To the Editor,

McGill Daily:

Dear Sir,—Rumours have been circulated to the effect that demonstrations against the First Year Classes have been planned by the Sophomores for Wednesday night. It has been reported that the Second Years will take advantage of the Fete de Nuit and intend to use "Student Night" for hazing purposes.

For the information of all First Year men and for the advice of all Sophomores, the Council wishes it to be strictly understood that all class demonstrations must be absolutely suspended Wednesday night.

Wednesday night is the Students' Night, and as such, its success depends entirely on the co-operation of every member of the entire student body. Inter-class friction and inter-year rivalry will have no place in the programme. Every man is needed to play his part, and any man who fails in this is taking away from the success of the evening's entertainment.

Truly yours,

J. G. COPELAND,
President, Students' Society.

CENTENNIAL CHOIR PRACTICE TONIGHT

Everybody Needed for Choir Practice Tonight

All out boys! for the last practice of the centennial choir in the Union ballroom at 8 o'clock sharp to-night. Practices have been going on for the last three weeks, but that is no reason for the slackers not turning out to-night. The choir has been organized by Mr. Toole and is accompanied by the McGill students orchestra under the able leadership of Mr. Hay. Owing to omission of announcements and the absence of the new Song-Book the practices have been greatly handicapped, so those who have taken the sheet music away must bring it to-night. So far the R. V. C. has been well represented, but for some unknown reason the men have shirked practices. This is a spirit unworthy of McGill. Remember if the Fete de Nuit is to be a success to-morrow night, Boys! it is up to you to lend your voices. Good or bad. Such well known songs as "O Canada My Home, In Flanders Fields and the McGill Centennial Hymn, will be sung.

NINE HUNDRED GRADS LISTED ON FIRST DAY

The Class of '63 is Oldest Represented on First Day

LIST OF GRADS.

Booths Are Crowded From Morning Till Night

The flood of graduates who registered at Strathcona Hall all day yesterday exceeded all expectations of the Re-Union Committee. Before booths were ready for the accommodation of the incoming men they were waiting to have their names placed on the lists. There were about nine hundred graduates listed during the day.

The students who had volunteered to do the work of registration were not given a minutes rest during the day and they responded nobly to the task of keeping everything going smoothly. The various faculties registered at booths placed in different sections of the hall and it was only a matter of a few moments to give them the information necessary and list their names, faculties and addresses.

There is now a file containing complete information about all the men and women who have registered so far and anyone wishing to do so has access to the records in order to secure information about friends and former classmates who are in the city. There is a special information booth for the use of incoming graduates while pamphlets containing information of interest are distributed about the hall. Under the able management of the men in charge of the booths it is only a matter of a minute before any information can be secured for those desiring it.

The distinction of being the oldest graduate to register on the first day falls to Dr. P. E. Brown a graduate of Medicine '63. Next in line comes a graduate of Law '65, in the person of T. B. Butler. There are three R. V. C. graduates of the year '88, while a whole list of men and women who graduated in seventies and eighties were registered. Dr. F. D. Adams, Dean of the Faculty of Science, is the oldest graduate of that faculty to register, having left with the class of '78.

While the majority of those who registered yesterday are graduates who have been living in Montreal, there are many who have come to the city ahead of time in order to be present for the opening of the celebration. The list of the out-of-town people is expected to be swelled materially today while the real rush should begin tomorrow morning when the celebration officially begins.

The names, faculties and years of the graduates who registered yesterday is given below:

J. P. Anglin, Sci. '06
G. F. Albega, Sci. '15.
J. Alward, Sci. '11.
W. W. Alexander, Med. '91.
D. P. Anderson, Med. '95.
A. F. Argue, Med. '14.
G. E. Armstrong, Med. '77.
J. J. Andrews, Med. '03.
J. C. Armour, Med. '21.
Maude Abbott, Med. '10.

ROOTERS ALL OUT THIS AFTERNOON

Final Workout This Evening at Union

In the Union to-night at 5.10 sharp the Rooters will hold their final workout before the Fete de Nuit and the field day Friday.

Every undergraduate is expected to be out to this practice and make it the best yet. Last night an enthusiastic workout was held in the Union and about 600 leather hags were out and showed all kinds of pep. The old spirit of 1852 showed itself again and the work out was a great success.

Again tonight, the old band will be up and at it and everybody should make it a point at being on the job and getting their old throats oiled up for the weeks' act wities.

The first yell will be shot at 5.15 sharp and the practice will be over in 30 minutes. There is room for everyone so all up.

The new style rooters hats will be put on sale and everyone will have to get one of these new ones as they are to be used in a special colour scheme and will do for the football and hockey games.

The grandstand colour scheme will be laid out on a black-board today by Joe Wain and everybody wants to be out and make sure he gets the idea.

So all up tonight at 5.10 in the Union.

QUALITY VS. QUANTITY.

In the minds of the many graduates who are rapidly gathering from all parts of Canada, nay of the world, there must be either distinctly or vaguely felt the wonder of what McGill will accomplish during the second century of her existence. The question may not be clearly formulated, and in many cases has not reached articulation. But it is there. It must be there. And it exists in the mind of the student body at large as well, the all-important question of what great things McGill is going to do within the coming hundred years, what great part she is going to play in the affairs of Canada and the Empire. The answer to the question, the answering the challenge of the past century by doing still greater things in the future, will depend largely on the policy that her governors and officers elect to pursue.

In an analysis of the problem before us we come quickly and inevitably to the matter of size. Many ask themselves: "Is McGill going to reach out, develop, expand? Is she going to have a vast number of students? How is she going to rank with other universities in this respect? Will it be to her benefit to carry out such a programme of growth?" On the answers to these queries will depend, we believe, McGill's future greatness. The answers will be shortly had because they will be clearly revealed in the policy she adopts. Is she going to stretch out on all sides endeavouring to secure a greater and greater number of students within her halls, or is she to be content with a comparatively small registration?

At this point we find ourselves face to face with the following important question, the reply to which will enable us to determine suitable responses for the first queries. It is this. Does a large registration necessarily affect the greatness of a university? Does the matter of having a vast number of students at once place a university in the first rank? To which we can answer most emphatically, NO. It is true a university can be large and great and that it can also be small and obscure. But it may quite as well be, or in fact it really is better, of moderate size and at the same time among the first. It is in this latter class that we think the majority of the well-wishers of McGill would like to see her take her stand. It is in this class she already is and it is here she should remain. Quality and not quantity should be the keynote of her existence.

The Faculty of Medicine has already led the way in this respect by limiting the number of yearly entrants and raising the standard of admission requirements. The other faculties would do well to follow her lead. For this is the first step towards our goal. It is in this manner we gather at the university the young men best fitted to be here.

It will of course be urged by some that the interests of sport will be detrimented by a move of this kind. But this argument can be refuted by actual instances. For example, no one has thought of Yale and Princeton being hurt athletically because of their small numbers. Yet they have fewer students than McGill. And moreover, if a man realizes that admission to a certain university carries with it more honour and is of greater consequence than admission to another, he will put forth his best endeavours to enter the former. And accordingly the best possible class of men will be found in it, with the natural result that the college spirit, the esprit de corps, which counts for so much on the field of sport, is raised to a correspondingly high pitch. A university of about two thousand students, or possibly fewer, is about the ideal size, when composed of several faculties. Everyone in each separate faculty comes into more or less personal contact with everyone else in the same faculty, and when a man passes through the university and receives his degree, his graduation from that particular university will carry great weight both with the world in general and himself in particular. In other words, the college leaves a distinct visible impression on the man.

As arguments in favour of limited registration we may urge that McGill is even now overcrowded. Her gymnasium equipment is woefully inadequate, the number of her tennis courts is ridiculously insufficient, and that contact with the professors which is so desirable in many cases absolutely lacking. The "Christmas Graduations" in some of the faculties furnish another line of attack. They are unnecessary. The men who thus "graduate" should never have been allowed to enter McGill.

Of course this short article by no means exhausts the whole subject of limited registration. But it suggests a line of thought, which if followed out by anyone, should lead him to realize that for McGill's future greatness efficiency and not size, quality and not quantity, should be her stand and that if this policy is adopted her name will resound even louder than ever before in tones of praise and admiration, even unto the ends of the earth.

ATTENTION, MCGILL!

The undergraduates are requested to remember that the suspension of lectures from Tuesday night till Monday morning has not been done in order to give the student body a holiday, but instead to afford a full opportunity for them to take part in the various festivities in connection with the Reunion. The celebration of course is primarily for the graduates but its success will be greatly hampered if the undergraduates do not throw themselves wholeheartedly into the proceedings. Wednesday in particular is undergraduates day, when the main events will be staged by the present students. The successful issue of these performances lies as much with the backing of the students at large as with the performers. Therefore every man attending McGill is urged to get out and do his share. The eyes of all the graduates will be on you and you must show yourselves worthy of the great work you have gone before.

ROOTERS' BAND TONIGHT AT 5.10

The band will work out with the Rooters to-night, in the Union, and all men who can play instruments of any kind are expected out. It is not too late for new men yet to get in the band, so any new men should turn out to-night.

The bandmen should get down to the band room as soon as they can after 5 o'clock, so as to tuneup. Chub, has things going great, and as the band is going to figure in the Fete de Nuit, it is hoped everyone will be down to-night.

OLD BOYS TO PLAY MCGILL SENIOR TEAM

Laing, "Monty" Parkins and Others Will Be There

PRACTICE TODAY

Former Stars Will Once Again
Delight the Railbirds

Men who in other days upheld the glories of McGill will once again don the mole skins, not this time to uphold but to help further the interests of their alma mater. In former years the schedule was so arranged that it was possible to run in a few exhibition games in preparation for the actual season but this season this was not possible for the reason that the "Big Four" dates interfered with those of the Intercollegiate so the Football team had to fall back on the ever reliable Old Boys. This afternoon there will be a practice in preparation for the game against the Senior team tomorrow.

It will bring back memories to many of the older students to see such famous skin artists as Draper, Laing, Montgomery et al. cavorting around the Stadium and going through the old familiar formations.

To Bus Reid goes the credit of arranging the game. McGill has no more enthusiastic supporter than this former star line man who appears every fall to lend the weight of his experience to the building of McGill's football fortunes.

It is quite well understood that the Old Boys will not be in condition to put up the contest of which they are capable but the seniors will be without the services of Flanagan who is in the hospital with an infected jaw and McGregor who is on the injured list. These two men will probably be available for the Varsity game but their absence at this time weakens the machine which was just beginning to work with the precision necessary to a successful team.

The committee in charge of the Old Boys game have been unable to ascertain the names of all former football players who will be in town but with the following Old Boys and any others whose names do not appear on the list and who learn of the game through the medium of the daily papers are requested to be on hand today and tomorrow at four o'clock.

SYRACUSE A FORMIDABLE AGGREGATION

Have Piled Up Huge Scores on Victims

HERE NOV. 5th McGill Being Coached in American Game

According to Syracuse's football record so far this year, McGill comes up against a strong team on November 5.
In three games the Orange eleven has managed to pile up a total of 115 points against their opponents, while their goal-line still remains uncrossed.

In their opener Hobart went down to defeat by the score of 35-0; the following week the Ohio team fell victim to the powerful attack of the Syracuseans in a 38-0 whitewash; on Saturday the Syracuse team avenged last year's defeat at the hands of Maryland when they ran up the largest score of the season, defeating their rivals 42-0.

Notwithstanding the fact that they are a heavy aggregation they possess one of the fastest back-field combinations in the East. Herbert, Zimmerman, Anderson, and Kellogg make up as powerful a half-line as any college team this year boasts of. They are backed on the substitutes' bench by a very able squad of spares, all of whom have made a good showing in the first three games.
Zimmerman, who was the mainstay of last year's freshman team, has so far scored 53 points, and Herbert, the quarter-back, comes next with thirteen to his credit.

In addition to this stellar backfield the line includes several "200 pounders" and has so far this year prevented its opponents from making one first down.
The have also perfected a very smooth interference game, and have bewildered their opponents with their clever tactics.

The game here on November 5th will draw a large crowd, and will undoubtedly prove an interesting one to watch.
For the first time since the days long ago, when Harvard used to send up a team, an American eleven will be seen in action in Montreal.

Local enthusiasts will be able to compare the American game with the Canadian, and the interference game as played at American colleges will be seen at its best in the Syracuse team.

The McGill squad is rounding into shape gradually and will be at top form when the Orange squad invades the Molson Stadium. Frank Shaughnessy, who knows the American game in all its minor details, has been coaching the men in various branches of the other style.

Brown, an ex-Syracuse man, will be up here shortly, and will assist "Shag" in his preparations for the big game.
The McGill line will profit by another former Syracusean, in the person of Norm Livshin, who will most likely hold down the snap-back position.

Seats for the game are now on sale, and will be much in demand after the tickets for the Varsity game are disposed of. The game is being given some publicity in the States, and no doubt a number of American followers of the game will be in Montreal on November 5th.

R.V.C. ROOTERS TO PRACTICE TO-DAY

Cut Out These Songs and Learn Them

Will you please learn these songs and yells to-day—the morning—right now —and have them ready for the practice to-day at 1.00. And remember to sign your names to-day if you are going to the game as tickets will be bought tomorrow. And if you have changed your mind, cross your name off to-day, or you will be responsible for your ticket.
To-day is the last day. In the meantime, practice at one to-day in the gym.

YELL

Get that ball, McGill
You gotta get it! (Loud)

SONG

James McGill, James McGill Peacefully he slumbers there Blessful tho' we're on the tear
James McGill, James McGill
He's our father, well, yes rather James McGill

Put on your red and white sweater For we haven't any better And we'll open up another keg of beer For it's not for knowledge that we came to college

But to raise hell all the year.
Toronto, Toronto, Toronto Varsities We'll shout and fight for the blue and white
And the honour of U. of T.
A rippity, a-rippity, a-rippity, rippity

Toronto, Toronto, Toronto Varsities
Varsity, ain't you ever coming back?
No, never What, never?

PROF. LEACOCK NOW ON TOUR IN ENGLAND

Lecture Trip of Three Months in British Isles

SUBJECT HUMOUR

Interviews Reporter of London Paper

Professor Stephen Leacock, the Head of the Department of Political Economy, is at present occupied on a three months lecture tour of the British Isles, with "humour" as the subject of his addresses.
He is far better known in England as a humorist than as an economist, and a few cars ago was the subject of an eulogy in the columns of the London Punch.
The following is the account of an interview a representative of the Daily Mail in London.

"Sitting in the lounge of a West End Hotel last night was a well built, grey-haired man, dressed in a comfortable grey tweed suit, who was the centre of a gale of laughter.

He was Mr. Stephen Leacock, the humorous writer and professor of political economy at McGill University, Montreal, who had just arrived in England for a three-months' lecture tour.
He was enjoying many jokes with some friends. His own laugh was almost the loudest and heaviest of all, and a Daily Mail reporter who was with him asked him if his own stories made him laugh.

"Yes," he said frankly, "they do, very much. They tickle me. That is the test.
If a story makes me laugh I think it may make other people laugh."

Mr. Leacock's time of writing stories will be rather a shock to those people who eling to the English tradition that even to talk at breakfast is dreadful and that no one can be really cheerful in the morning.

"I never write anything after 11 in the morning, and I usually begin at 6 or 7 or thereabouts," he said. "I often write before breakfast. After 11 I go to the university, and then I am busy all day."

Mr. Leacock finds it much harder to write humour than treatises about political economy. "An article about political economy may be good enough, and it will pass. Humour either is very good or no good at all. I write my humour straight off, very quickly, and don't correct it. In humour I consider the first impulse is the best."

He has very decided views about Prohibition. "I think that Prohibition is deplorable," he said. "The one man whom it has not impeded is the drunkard. Under Prohibition, getting drunk occupies all his time, and his wife is more the 'picture-book' drunkard's wife than ever, because she has less money than ever owing to the increased price of drink. I will write articles against Prohibition at any time for any paper for nothing."

With regard to the matter of the value of humour in school teachers, recently discussed in The Daily Mail, Professor Leacock speaks with authority, and confirms the opinion expressed by English teachers. "Humour is a perfectly invaluable asset in teaching at schools, in my opinion," he said. "I was a schoolmaster for some years, and I found humour very useful."

"I remember one boy who spent very much of his time chewing paper and making 'spit-balls'."

"One day I brought a whole sheet of new foolscap paper and told him that he needn't do any work, but he could just sit in a corner and eat that paper."

"You have only had scraps before," I said. "Now you can really have a meal." He demurred very much, but the pressure of public opinion was too great, and he had to spend the morning eating the paper.

"Once I had a boy in my class whose father was in the habit of going over his son's work. One day I got a note from this father, saying that his son had been with me 6 months, and yet his knowledge of Latin was very bad. He asked me what the cause of this was. I just wrote at the bottom, 'It must be hereditary.'
That was the end of that."

ECONOMIC CLUB WANTS MEMBERS

Students Will Find Meetings Profitable

Another appeal is now being made for members for the Economic Club. In former days, the membership was limited by the fact that only honors students of the third and fourth years were admitted. But now the Club is open to anyone studying Economics at McGill, which includes a large number indeed, not only in Arts, but in Commerce and Science, too.

Economics is looked upon by many as being a dry and unsatisfactory study, unsatisfactory insofar as it comes to few definite conclusions. But this should really be a great argument in its favor, for after all, who wants everything to be regarded as settled and unchangeable. If everything in the world today were definitely settled and agreed upon, what would be the use of living.
Life is only to be passed in the attempt to arrive more closely to the solutions of the vital problems. And if these solutions had already been reached, the interest of life would be gone. Economics deals with many things, more than people actually realize. But when one comes to consider everything in its fullest light, there is scarcely a single problem confronting the world to-day which

BRITISH RULE WAS BOON TO MEN OF INDIA

Rustom Rustomjee Was Speaker at R.V.C.

SMALL AUDIENCE

Comparison Between Present and Past Economic and Political Conditions

A most interesting and instructive address was delivered by Rustom R-ustomjee at the R.V.C. yesterday afternoon. The speaker dealt with the effects of British rule on India, and how it improved that country politically and economically.

There is a wide agitation at present, both in India and outside, especially in the United States of America, having as its object the breaking down of the unity of the British Empire. This agitation has not left Canada untainted. It is to tell the truth about the real condition of India that the speaker has as his object.

The speaker stated that he had a document in which there were thirteen charges against the British Government of India, drawn up by a certain American periodical. It is charged, among other things, that Britain has made the present economic condition of India less sound than when it took it over; and that she has not promoted education.

The speaker emphatically denied the above charges. History tells us that ever since about 300 B.C., India was never at peace, internally or externally. There is not a period of 21 years that India did not suffer from foreign invasion.

How could a country be economically sound under such conditions? India has enjoyed peace internally and externally since Britain took it over, in 1818. To have come to a country as big as Europe (without Russia), having a population of more than three hundred millions, torn by continuous strife, and within the short period of less than 75 years, to have established peace and security, is a task worthy of admiration by the world and of gratitude by the Indian people.

To show their gratitude the people of India were the first of all Britain's dominions to offer its services in the Great War. Within two months of August 4th, 1914, sixty thousand Indian troops, completely fitted out, were fighting on the European battlefield, and according to the British commander, materially helped to stem the time of the onrushing Huns. In all, India contributed one million and a quarter men, who fought on nearly all fronts; supplied munitions for the Galipoli expedition and gave a private grant of two billion dollars, to the British government.

In regard to the charge that Britain has neglected the education of India, the speaker stated that perhaps the elementary education has, of late years, suffered at the expense of higher education. Recently however technical colleges have been established, and, in the more modernized provinces, free compulsory education has been instituted.

But the greatest boon to India is British justice. In 1919 His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught opened the Indian Parliament. India is now self-governing and has control over her internal affairs. As a case in point, the speaker mentioned that recently the excise tax on a certain article imported from England was increased from seven to eleven per cent. When a deputation of English merchants petitioned the finance minister of India an Englishman to cancel this increase they received the reply that it was for the interest of India, and must, therefore, remain.

But, at bottom, stated the speaker, the alliance against Gt. Britain is a religious one. The Brahmins have united with the Mohammedans. This is an unholy alliance and will not, can not, exist.

Principi Currie presided. In thanking the speaker for his splendid address, he explained the small size of the audience by saying that most of the young men were busy preparing for the centennial celebration, especially to trim our traditional friends from Toronto in the mainly game of rugby.

does not have its economic bearing and consequences.

Of course it is not the aim of the club to settle these problems, or to arrive at exact conclusions concerning them. But discussion of them and especially of those as immediately affecting Canada will prove of immense advantage to the complete understanding of them, and of great benefit to those taking part in the discussions.

All out, then, to the first meeting, Thursday, October 20.

PRESBYTERIANS HOLD ELECTIONS

Strong Executive Chosen for Coming Year

A special meeting of the resident students of the Presbyterian College was held last Thursday night, for the purpose of electing the remaining officers for the coming year. The college is governed by a Students' Council, in much the same way that McGill is managed. This Council is composed of nine members, all of whom must be resident in the building in order that their attendance at any meetings can be readily secured. These officers are the president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, president of the Literary and Philosophical Society, president of the Missionary, manager of athletics, and representative of the registered men not yet in theology, a representative from the non-registered students, and the Chairman of the board of prefects. The following men were elected:

President—James Clarke.
Vice-president—D. Livingstone.
Sec. Treas.—A. T. McIntyre.
Representative of Registered Students—R. C. Harris.
The other members of the Council are R. Hall, president of the Missionary Society, A. O. Lloyd, president of the Literary Society, and C. S. McGerrigle, athletic representative. The chairman of the board of prefects has not yet been appointed.

With so strong an executive, one composed of good-working, energetic men, the year at the Presbyterian College seems predestined to be most successful.

GRADUATE SOCIETY THANKS VOLUNTEERS

The men who are handling the registration of Graduates in Strathcona Hall are already in a position to realize that as far as numbers are concerned the Centennial is a success. From early yesterday morning until late last night the volunteers worked in order to keep up with the rush alumni. The demand on supplies was so great that at one time a shortage was feared. In appreciation for this work Mr. Fraser Keith wishes that these men be thanked.

ENTHUSIASM ALL THAT'S

The Fete de Nuit proper is all prepared. News has just come in from Medicine that their act, which will be the last on the programme, is going to be the real hit of the evening. To describe it it is said to be almost without the bounds of human capabilities. To the act will be given a prologue depicting the origin of King Cook the Immortal.

The Spirits of Former Days, spirits of graduates now scattered throughout the realms of earth will come back to profess their allegiance to their rightful lord and sovereign, the inimitable Tebin. In these spirits are represented every nationality conceivable, every cult and creed, every colour and hue, including we are told, strange figures from the regions of Hawaii clad in native costume. The whole act will be ghastly, illuminating, causing cold shivers to play tag up and down your spines; artistic and beautiful bringing forth real admiration and applause; hilarious and amusing, resulting in tears of mirth.

Science men are asked to be present at a special meeting of the undergraduate society of that faculty at 12.45 to-day in room 33 of the Engineering building.

Now men, all together. Put your shoulder to the wheel and do your bit. Cooperation and enthusiasm are the countersigns for Wednesday night.

MANDOLIN CLUB
TONIGHT AT 7.15Peate's Studio Rendezvous for Second Practice

To-night at 7.15, Peate's Studio, St. Catherine St., the second weekly practice of the Mandolin Club will take place. This club is an exceedingly live organization this year, and if last week's practice can be taken as a pointer, the success of the club is ensured this session.

It will be welcome news to all the members that Prof. Reilly, of the Physics Department, has consented to fill the position of Honorary President of the Club. He will also play with the club, whenever he can, which is encouraging indeed. If a professor with so much to do, and so little time to do it in, on his hands, can find time to take an active and large interest in musical aggregation, certainly every student who plays the mandolin should be able to afford a few of his less precious moments in backing up one of McGill's oldest and most popular organizations.

A decent system, whereby each member supplies his own music is being adopted this year. Other methods have been tried out in the past, but have been unsuccessful. This present plan is felt by all to be much the best as regards satisfaction and efficiency. Each rehearsal will see a new piece taken up for study, one popular and one on the style of good swinging marches, and pleasing waltzes. This policy should speedily give the club a repertoire which will entertain any audience whatsoever.

COLLEGE CHEERS

Success Depends to Large Extent Upon Graduates

Owing to a slight hitch in the publication arrangements for the new McGill Song-Book, it will not be placed on sale at the Union and at the various City book-stores before the latter end of this week.

For the present every incoming Graduate, when registering at Strathcona Hall, may sign a special subscription-blank, in order that as many copies as possible may be delivered before the conclusion of the Centennial Celebrations. A specially selected staff will be on hand at the Hall all through the day to enter any subscriptions. There are a few sample copies on view.

For the benefit of any out-of-town Graduates, who have arrived recently, it may be mentioned that the new McGill University Song-Book contains a complete edition of all McGill songs together with a specially selected collection of popular and patriotic songs. There is also a page of the more deservedly popular yells and of the best known of the war-songs and trench-ditties.

No new edition of the Song-Book has been published since the year 1895. The present one was undertaken by the Student's Council, who have spared no expense in this important enterprise. It will fall to a large extent upon the visiting graduates to make the present undertaking a financial success. As a memento of the present celebrations the Song-Book should find a place in the portmanteau of every departing Grad.

NEWFOUNDLANDERS
HOLD BIG MEETINGMcGill Man Elected as Rhodes Scholar

The Newfoundland Club held its first meeting in the reading room of Strathcona Hall at 7 o'clock last night. Quite a large number of new, as well as a large percentage of old members were present. President Davis, in welcoming the new members of the club, reviewed briefly the past activities of the Club, and spoke optimistically of the future outlook of Newfoundlanders at McGill.

A discussion then ensued as to the part the Club should play during the Re-union Celebration, and whereas diversified opinions were expressed, yet the programme to be arranged will be worthy of past traditions.

Great enthusiasm prevailed when it was announced to the Club that C. J. Parsons, Med. '23, had been elected Rhodes scholar for Newfoundland. Parsons matriculated at Bishop's Field College, St. John's, Newfoundland, where he was a star hockey and football player. Every member of the club congratulates Mr. Parsons on this great distinction.

Before the meeting closed several of the new members — Freshmen—were called upon to give an address.

When a Freshman in Applied Science was questioned as to why he appeared at such a meeting without his insignia—green fan bow—he replied, "If some of you men knew the difficulties these green bows gave you you would be glad to appear sometimes as somebody apart from Freshies." These are secrets which should not be divulged, yet in Club meetings secrets soon become free from libel.

A motion for adjournment came at 8 o'clock, which ended one of the most enthusiastic meetings of the club, and as this is the initial meeting of the year's work, every prospect awaits the movements of the "Trailers of the Caribou."

ANNUAL MEETING
